EIGHTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Dear Friends,

Summer comes to an end, but not the hot temperatures - just the respite from the school/college schedules and its extra-curricular activities, along with trying to exact the last drop of peaceful time before the usual bedlam begins in a couple of weeks. Despite all that, we got a very good response to our request for some extra helping hearts to reach out to the remainder of our Harvey families. As I said two weeks ago during the homily, we are now down to the last seven families of the initial group who still need our assistance, both emotionally and materially. At this stage, almost a year after the disastrous Harvey hurricane, there are still too many people who are literally beside themselves, exhausted and hardly functioning at any reasonable to normal level. Thus, we are most thankful to Frank and Liz, Aimee, Greta, Tom and Ann, Kay, and Elaine, who have volunteered to be a supportive extra pair of ears and eyes, to reach out to these people and help them in whatever way they can. Isn't it great to have a clear head to guide you and help you discern the next move when you are in an interminable muddle and to reassure you that you haven't gone completely mad?!

From those who have come out the other end of this in one piece, you will find a few new thank you cards on the notice board near the kitchen, opposite the parish office doors, with some very heartfelt words of appreciation and gratitude for the generous outreach expressed in so many ways through the parish of St. Catherine of Siena. Be sure to take a couple of minutes to read them when you are having your usual Sunday morning coffee and cookie with your fellow parishioners or when you are doing your Saturday pre or post Mass schmoozing. These notes will lift your spirits and put you in good cheer to know that there is lots of good news in our world, despite the headline-catching gloom that sometimes overshadows all else.

Have a great week,

Fr. Niall
